

Powerful Presentations for Professionals

WORKSHOP INTRODUCTION:

Have you ever been asked to present something at the last minute? How did you feel? Do you feel nervous at the thought of preparing and delivering an important presentation? Have you ever realised that the quality of your presentation will largely influence the opinion others have of your career potential? Has the fear of standing up in front of a group of people ever cost you a career opportunity?

Most of us do not naturally have the confidence or skills to stand up and make a convincing presentation to others. We need help. We need the tools. We need practice and personal feedback, with encouragement.

People whose careers are destined for leadership roles in business need to be able to present ideas positively and persuasively in front of others. We need skills to be able to manage meetings and create a good image - drawing people to us and towards our ideas. We need to learn how to hold peoples' attention and clearly communicate to them what we mean to say.

These skills do not come naturally – for most of us, we are either naturally too self-conscious or insufficiently skilled in the art of public speaking and the use of modern technology to assist in presentations. Few of us have been formally taught how to prepare or deliver an effective business presentation.

We need help in learning how to apply effective research and preparation skills in order to assemble presentations. We also need help to develop our confidence in delivering powerful presentations. Both these sets of competencies will assist in furthering our careers and business goals.

WORKSHOP OBJECTIVES:

Candidates who successfully complete this workshop will be able to achieve a more positive and effective outcome in their public presentations by communicating with impact. By the end of the workshop, participants will:

- have gained the skills of structuring and developing interesting material that meets the audiences needs
- have learned how to plan, prepare and deliver business presentations that have significant outcomes
- have discovered their own personal strengths and unique presentation styles through the feedback given
- have a better understanding of the characteristics that determine voice quality
- be able to use an appropriate body language that enhances their communications
- be able to use audio-visual aids confidently and effectively
- be able to positively handle difficult questions and challenging audience interactions

BENEFITS:

Successful participants on this workshop will be able to prepare and use a presentation, communication and interaction style that will result in the most successful outcome possible – a clearly and convincingly presented talk that achieves its objectives.

The workshop will cover techniques and tools used to prepare and deliver powerful and effective business presentations, using the latest technology.

There will be plenty of opportunity to develop, practice and receive feedback on these skills, so that they feel comfortable with them. For this reason, the workshop will be limited to eight attendees, in order to maximise personalised skills practice, personal feedback and coaching.

Participants will find that the knowledge and skills they gain on this workshop will assist them outside the work environment as well...!

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

All personnel who are required to deliver presentations in the course of their work will benefit. In particular, it is suggested that the workshop should be directed towards:-

- Technical personnel (Engineers, Technicians, Planners, etc.)
- Department Managers
- Supervisors
- Public Relations personnel
- Sales and Marketing personnel
